

Message from the President

Creating a Vibrant Environment for All Our Stakeholders

The Great East Japan Earthquake has made all of us here at Taisei keenly aware of the roles and responsibilities that the construction industry has to fulfill in today's society. After all, our industry does more than just construct buildings; we develop a wide variety of different architectural structures, all of which help to foster the vibrant economy needed to ensure that industry prospers and that people enjoy a comfortable lifestyle. Since being established in 1873, Taisei has taken on the great task of building assets for our society's development, combining a strong sense of duty with cutting-edge technology. With a view to achieving the Taisei Group Ideal of creating a vibrant environment for all our stakeholders, we remain fully committed to creating urban environments that can better withstand natural disasters. Not only that, in light of the world's pressing need to create a low-carbon society, we aim to contribute to the realization of a sustainable society through measures such as the development of zero energy building (ZEB) technology. Finally, in keeping with our willingness to take up any challenge, we will continue our efforts to create attractive urban environments of exceptional value that will stand the test of time.

山内隆司

Takashi Yamauchi

President and CEO